Dear Park Laurel Homeowners:

As you know, our General Manager, Jeremy Rupel has been addressing some significant personal matters over the past couple of months. Last week, he informed us that the demands on his time to appropriately care for his family required that he would be gone from Park Laurel for an undetermined time, but that it could be multiple months. In light of this, he felt that it was best for him and for the building to tender his resignation. We are sorry to see Jeremy go and we are very supportive of him on a personal level to do whatever needs to be done for his family. Action Property Management would look to welcome him back should Jeremy return to San Diego in the future.

Upon notification from Jeremy, Action Property Management began working with the Board to immediately address the General Manager vacancy. Over this past weekend, Action was able to finalize the return of Ryan Figley as the General Manager at Park Laurel. Ryan's first day back will be tomorrow, Tuesday, February 12. Ryan will have his hands full catching up on all that is happening in the building, but over the course of this next week, feel free to stop by and welcome Ryan back. We are glad to have him here. At the same time, we wish Jeremy the very best – both with his family and wherever his next steps lead him in his career.

Warmest Regards,

The Board of Directors and Matthew Holbrook, Action Property Management
